Excerpt: . the body of man is at least, three or four times more perfect in its mechanism than the most perfect steam-engine. Our artificers and engineers have, consequently, much still to accomplish; and yet these numbers are of a nature calculated to prove that there is community of principle between the living engine and the other; because, if we take an account of all the losses inevitable in fire-machines, and so carefully and admirably guarded against in the human fabric, the identity of principle in their respective forces stands out clear and manifest to the eyes. (27) But we have gone far enough in a course in which your own reflections already take the lead of me, and where your recollections leave me nothing to add. If we recapitulate, we shall see that the primitive atmosphere of our globe has formed itself into three great parts or masses: One, constituting the atmospheric air of the present time; a second, represented by plants; a third, by animals. Between these three masses continual exchanges are effected: matter descends from the air into vegetables, penetrates in this way into animals, and returns to the air in proportion as they consume or apply it to their purposes. Green vegetables constitute the grand laboratory of organic chemistry. They are the agents which, with carbon, hydrogen, azote, water, and oxide of ammonium, slowly form the most complex organic substances. Under the form of heat, or of chemical rays, they...
