This type of publication is almost everything and helped me looking forward and much more. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. You wont really feel monotony at whenever you want of your own time (that's what catalogs are for relating to if you ask me).

PART V COLONEL CAMPBELLS COLUMN--FEBRUARY 1ST TO APRIL 27TH, 1901 THE move commonly known as Frenchs Eastern Trek would, if carried out as originally conceived, have gone very near ending the war. It was to have been a sweep of nine columns from westwards on to the Swaziland border to the east. But at the last moment two strong columns under Generals Plumer and Paget, which were to have been on the left of the sweeping line, were called off to attend to De Wet, who had broken into Cape Colony. Thus only seven columns were available, and there was a large gap on the left of the line, with nothing but the small column under Colonel Campbell to fill it. Through this gap most of the Boers, among them the commandos of Beyers and Louis Botha, eventually escaped. The movement ended in the capture of over 2000 Boers, and numbers of guns, waggon, cattle and sheep; and in a great clearing of a country which up till then had been untouched; and even as it was, it caused such a change in the tone of the Boer commandos that in April, with the prospect of winter before them, they sent Louis Botha to meet Lord Kitchener at Middelburg, and almost agreed to the terms he then offered them. There was little fighting during this movement, but the column under Colonel Campbell, owing to its isolated position and to its weakness in numbers, saw...
